THE "SWEET USES" OF SEWAGE. We begin to believe there are two polluted with sewage emanations has been generally taken for granted, but it appears that there is a difference of 41 Park Row, N. Y. on even on that point. In the opinion even on that point. In the British Parliament, a report has just been made with regard to the number of persons employed in the sewers under the control of the Metropolitan tacked by fever. Of one hundred and eleven men employed in cleansing and flushing sewers, only four have suffered from fever, though a majority of them have been engaged upon the work from ten to upwards of thirty years. Of the four attacked only one died, and of another it is noted that he "caught typhus fever from his family," not from the sewers. Of the Board of Works, and the number at-But while contact with sewage in any capacity seems to be a desirable thing the perfection of health and the fulles degree of longevity are, we gather from the return, to be acquired only by living directly over a sewer. Looking down the list, we see that George Mantle, aged forty-nine, has been living for fourteen years over the outfall sewer at Old Ford and has never had fever. Charles Cousins, aged had fever. Charles Cousins, aged By their use the heels are kept straight ankles atrengthened, repairs saved, i had fever. Charles Cousins, aged fifty-two, has lived twenty-five years in the sluice-house over King's Scholars' Pond with similar impunity .-W. A. Broughton, aged sixty, has enjoyed a residence in Great St. John's nice-house for thirty-two years; and George Lester has lived over Duffield sluice for thirty-five years, and lives there now, a hale old man of sixtytwo. A specially interesting case is that of William Johnson, who not only lives over a sewer, but has penstock at the rear of his dwelling. He had at the date of the return been "it is perhaps rather soon to draw gen-eral conclusions; but if Mr. Johnson continues to thrive, it may be desira-ble for the medical faculty to consider whether the monotony of trips to the seaside might not be profitably varied for their patients by the occasional occupancy of a favorably situated sluice-house."—Boston Journal of Chemistry. THE SUN BURNING UP. There is a dismal way for accounting for the too great heat under which we have labored for the past few days -a way so far the reverse of reassur ing as to plunge even the calm mind into profound depths of anguish Late examinations of the sun's pho tosphere made with the spectrosco show magnesium to have received reinforcements, and to be burning away with fearful rapidity and vio-lence. Captain Ericsson has compu-ted the ordinary temparature of the sun itself to be about four and a half million degrees Fahrenheit, while at the boundary of its atmosphere its temperature is over two million degrees. Later calculations ascribe a ower temperature to the grand luminary; but no matter, it has always been warm enough for practical pur-poses. It is now asserted that, what with magnesium let loose, and some minutest particles in the flames, the sun is actually burning up, and, at this season, has a special blast at work. By how slight a tenure the earth holds its existance in its present form may be understood when one knows of the tremendous disruptive forces of the sun; and, if the great and mounted. The present position of some of the Republicans who have come out for Greeley, reminds the Boston Trans ript of the story of an old fellow in New Hampshire who, whatever his condition, never lost the sense of his dignity. One warm summer's day he was sented on the top of a stage coach which was slowly wending its way which was slowly wending its way over the sandy roads above Concord. Frequent application to his pocket flask had rendered his position somewhat unsteady, and at last a sudden joit tumbled him off into the sand by the roadside. The driver stopped, and with aid from the passengers, he was at last set up again in the coach, between two other men, who were to tween two other men, who were to guard against a recurrence of such an Our hero looked very solemn for a nile or two, without any remark, and then spoke:

But the most remarkable evidence of the salutary effects of sewage is found in the records of the "men employed as penstock and flap-keepers." Of forty-two thus engaged, only one has suffered from fever, while there is one patriarch, Joph Spake by name, who is now seventy-five years of age, has spent flity years of his life among sewage, and has "not had one day's illness during this period."
